We are surprised when Jesus tells us that he came to bring division and not peace. This does not mean that Jesus wants us to fight others. He is warning us that if we are going to be his disciples, conflict with others is not what we should seek, but sometimes it is going to be what we find ourselves having to endure.

When we might experience those conflicts in our lives, even though it can be difficult, we are not called to respond in anger, but in love, in charity, in kindness, and also in firmness and resolve. If those we cherish see that our fear of giving offense causes us not to stand for the faith we claim to believe, then they will believe, at least subconsciously if nothing else, that our faith and our beliefs are only as deep as our lips.

Not many of us will face actual physical violence for giving witness to the faith, but there is always a price to pay. Some will make fun of us, others will call us fools, still others will take advantage of us. This is the price we pay for being disciples.
