The "prayer" of the Pharisee in today's Gospel is basically a monologue of self-congratulation. Four times he began with "I." His ego blossoms into contempt for others. He speaks a word of thanks, but it is not for any gift that has been given. He congratulates himself for being better than others.

His words indicate that he believes it is his own deeds that make him righteous; that is, right-with-God. Insofar as he fails to give God any credit for his good deeds, he becomes self-righteous.

There is some Pharisee in us all. Like him, we consider ourselves religious people. Like him our motives for what we do and why we act are sometimes flawed.

The tax collector's humble confession of guilt is a profession of faith, for God alone is the source of mercy. The tax collector clearly believes in the God of mercy. He leaves the temple justified and righteous.

There is also some tax collector in us all. We recall some embarrassing things we have done that we cannot undo. We stand before God at the beginning of Mass and acknowledge our sinfulness both "for what we have done and what we have failed to do."

The brief summary of today's Gospel: two men went up to the temple to pray - one didn't, one did.

Dear friends.

Each Sunday when we raise our petitions to our Lord, we hear a prayer for our brothers and sisters in Grand Vincent Haiti. We pray for them so often that they seem to become less than the flesh and blood of which we are all made...less than the hopes and dreams of a mom and dad for the futures of their children...less than the worries and tears shed for the child that will go to bed hungry tonight. For the past 20 years we have offered the hope that is education...a way out of the poverty that is the reality of Haiti. But after 20 years, so many of us have forgotten the commitment we made as a parish. We now have 37 teachers and 500 students who study calculus, mathematics and all the other courses offered to our students here. We now have two buildings housing classrooms and even though our parish church (200 years old) has been destroyed by Hurricane Matthew, our brothers and sisters still put on their best dresses and suits, and the little girls have their shiny leather shoes, and they come to pray on Sunday morning under a tarp...and they pray for all the tomorrows the children might have. And again we are faced with the specter of this being the last school year these children...our kids...might dream their dreams. One benefactor has donated $20,000 this year and that should help us get through the year (our monthly cost is $3800), but the future of our grammar and high school are in doubt. I will travel to Grand Vincent this January, and if anyone wishes to join me please let me know. And please pray for our kids. God bless you,

Deacon Joe
